Jul 08 – Jul 14 2019

A Pommie Favourite

Bangers and mash, also known as sausages and mash, is a traditional dish of Great Britain comprising sausages served with mashed potatoes. This Friday, Vince and Corrina Cook will serve up delicious and juicy thick beef sausages, served with potato mash, onion gravy and vegetables. For catering purposes, make sure your name is on the board by lunchtime Thursday.

Bus Driver: Don Noble Bar Crew: Ivan Scott & Ian Waller-Wilkinson
Friday Setting-up Crew: Judy Gorham & Cheryl McAteer

Vale Laurie O'Toole

It is with much sadness that we inform Club members of the death of Laurie O'Toole on Sunday, July 7. Many of you will remember him fondly for his many activities within the Club, notably assisting the dragon boat and outrigger paddlers with his diligent service. Our condolences have been sent to Lynne Turner and her family: our thoughts are with them during this harrowing time.

Calvert Memorial Sailing Series Event 2

It was cold! It was overcast! There was the threat of rain, when I arrived at the Boat Club to see the support team out on the deck not at all enthusiastic about organising the second of the Calvert Memorial Sailing Event.

Out on its mooring sat our pontoon, freshly cleaned and serviced and waiting for its first assignment since returning from the Slipway at Thornlands.

Finally, the tide had made it to the shore, and it was time to jump into action. Acting Sailing Master, Moss Lane gave the word, "Launch Sandpiper" he cried.

With six men on Sandpiper, plus two huge buoys, we headed out to the pontoon, first dropping off the Commodore and Dudley Kavanagh to move the pontoon up to the starting position at Dalpura. The five boats in the event were already circling waiting for the signal to be on their way.

Meanwhile, Sandpiper continued to Silver Moon, captained by Gayle Nemith to drop off Bob Stampton plus one of the buoys . They were to act as shepherd Boat out at the Straddie mark.

With only Moss, Don Noble and the remaining buoy aboard, Sandpiper took little time to catch up with the pontoon, and after it was anchored, and the last buoy laid, it was time to start the race.

It was a clean start, as the boats headed off down the bay towards the first mark off Peel Island. It was a relief to see them actually moving away from the pontoon at a reasonable pace. Not like other events where the course was shortened due to lack of wind.

On the pontoon the support team settled down to a long wait for the hardy sailors' return. Luckily, Secretary Margaret Britz had prepared a food hamper, which when produced by the Commodore, was quickly consumed by Moss, Dudley and Don.

Finally, we got the word from Silver Moon that they had all rounded the Straddie mark and were heading for home.

First over the line was Skirmish, skippered by Tony Harland, then Celeste skippered by Paul Driver, Beverley skippered by Dave Gemmel, Sirius skippered by Mike Stephens and Rainman skippered by Barry Rawlinson.

On handicap, first was Beverley, then Skirmish, Rainman, Celeste and Sirius.

Thank you to all the competitors and crews and also to the support crew out on the water and Pip who manned the base radio back at the Club.

Three Men, One Boat and a Pontoon (Part 2)

It was a dark and foggy night when Peter and Moya were heading home from the local pub along the Thames with son Todd. They just enjoyed a delicious meal of the finest English beef smothered with a sauce made from freshly picked field mushrooms.

As they walked, they could see a strange but vaguely familiar shape bearing down on them. Then suddenly, from out of the mist, it was upon them. It was the Tingira Pontoon. They stood there stunned for some time, as everything around them began to spin.

As their heads cleared, they realised that they weren't Peter and Moya at all but indeed Mossie and Bobbie, and it was not Todd but indeed Bassa who was the Hat Keeper, and they were bringing the pontoon back to the club after repairs.

They had left Thornlands some time earlier after a slight delay getting the pontoon back into the water. The pontoon looked brand new, after being stripped and anti-fouled and the motor was again running perfectly. Mossie and Bobbie had also gone across during the week and carried out addition works including bird-proofing the lockers. Not sure if that was to keep the birds in or out.

They were now no longer up the creek and were heading for home. They had ignored the Commodore's warning of high winds plus rain and chosen the worst day ever to make the crossing. The winds were coming from the South-East so a decision to take the scenic route around the north of Coochie was made. This was when the Commodore rang to ensure their safety. "We're okay" was the reinsuring reply. And they were, until not long after when they poked their nose out from behind Coochie. That's when they felt the full strength of the winds - directly into their faces. They would be pushing into that wind all the way back to the club.

The Commodore was not concerned, though he was seen several times at the club staring out to sea. Finally, they did get the pontoon back to the club in one piece, which was good as we did need it for the Calvert Memorial Event on Sunday, and the three men on board also made it as well.

Meanwhile back in London, Peter and Moya are just getting out of bed to start a new day. Moya is off to Wimbledon to watch the tennis while Peter, who does not like to get too far from water, will be seeking out a new part of the Thames to explore.

They both commented, and so did Todd, that their bodies were aching as if they had received a severe battering overnight.
